UHC 2030: Working Together to Strengthen Health Systems

Meeting of the International Health Partnership for UHC 2030

12-13 December 2016

Hotel Crowne Plaza, Av. Louis Casai 75-77, Geneva

Background

The integration of Universal Health Coverage (UHC) in the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) provides an opportunity to promote a comprehensive and coherent approach to health, focusing on how the health system delivers integrated, people-centred health services and ensures financial risk protection. The UHC focus aligns with the universalism of the SDGs and their goals and targets which are relevant across all countries.

The transformation of IHP+ into the International Health Partnership for UHC 2030 (UHC2030 in short) responds to the global demand and opportunities for better coordination of efforts to strengthen health systems as a means to accelerate progress towards UHC, improve global health security and achieve the SDGs. UHC2030 reflects the importance of multi-stakeholder collaboration on health systems strengthening to make progress towards UHC, offering a convening platform for a broad range of partners. UHC2030 acknowledges the political nature of UHC reforms and the need to focus on who benefits and who is left behind on pathways to achieve UHC. UHC2030 also carries forwards the unfinished mandate of the IHP+ to improve development cooperation in health.

The establishment of UHC2030 is well underway. To mark the launch of the transformation, the IHP+ organized a multi-stakeholder consultation on 22-23 June in Geneva to get a broader range of views on how to operationalize the objectives of UHC2030. The WHO Director General announced the establishment of UHC2030 during a side event in the margins of the UNGA hosted at the Rockefeller Foundation on 22 September. On 12 December, a transitional Steering Committee for UHC2030 will meet to decide on the governance arrangements and 2017 work plan for the Partnership.

As part of this transformation, UHC2030 is hosting a meeting on 12-13 December, to foster productive exchange between the various health systems partnerships and actors/agencies, build awareness of UHC2030 and explore how the Partnership can improve collaboration. This meeting primarily focuses on the first two objectives of UHC2030, on health systems coordination at global and country levels, engaging a range of stakeholders with particular inclusion of health system related partnerships, networks and alliances. It is envisaged that in the future, UHC 2030 could convene an annual meeting, engaging the full range of UHC2030 stakeholders, particularly countries, to provide a forum for mutual accountability.

Objectives of the meeting

- To present UHC2030 as the convening global health systems coordination platform, providing space for exchange and explore mutually supportive actions amongst various health systems networks and collaborative initiatives.
- To promote a shared vision for health system strengthening.
- To identify how each participating network or initiative can contribute to the UHC2030 agenda and update their work accordingly.
- To explore how UHC2030 can facilitate better collaboration and coordination across the different partnerships, networks and initiatives.
- To celebrate UHC Day on 12 December.

Agenda description

In order to live up to the expectations embedded in the SDGs, and to overcome persistent barriers on the road to UHC, creative collaboration among various partnerships, networks and initiatives (referred to as related initiatives) that aim to strengthen health systems is highly warranted. In this two-day event we will try to mobilize some of the constructive energy which exists in various initiatives and explore how together we can make genuine progress on the road towards UHC. Besides giving room for different initiatives' own meetings during Day 1 to reflect on how they can engage in UHC2030, we will facilitate dialogue and interactive dynamics throughout the two days of the meeting.

Day 1 will start with a short opening session to explain the objectives of the meeting and clarify expectations of the participants representing a range of partners engaged in the different health systems partnerships. Participants will then attend partnerships' specific meetings running in parallel aiming to identify how to build bridges before reconvening in a joint interactive session that will provide an opportunity to get a better understanding of who does what. In the evening of Day 1, there will be a public event to celebrate UHC day followed by a reception.

Day 2 will bring all participants together and focus on how to work together in strengthening health systems. It will start with Session 1 to set the scene, focusing on country perspectives. Session 2 will provide the opportunity to reflect on the value added of having a shared vision for health systems strengthening and how global initiatives can be relevant for countries in taking forward their own agenda. Group work will enable participants to explore priority areas and practical ways of enhancing collaboration. A closing ministerial session will provide give the opportunity to get political backing for collaboration envisaged within UHC2030.

The transitional UHC2030 Steering Committee (including current members and some representatives of partners potentially interested to join) will meet on 12 December to approve: governance arrangements and a work plan for 2017 reflecting the expanded mandate. The work plan for 2017 provides flexibility for areas of work to be taken forward in a collaborative way as specific deliverables still need to be defined, with opportunities for different initiatives to contribute.

See programme overview on following pages.

Outcomes

- Common understanding of the emerging consensus and change needed for health systems strengthening.
- Closer engagement of related initiatives in UHC2030, with articulation of how each network and participating initiative may contribute to the UHC2030 agenda.
- Potential areas of collaboration and synergies between initiatives in light of the UHC2030 agenda and practical ways of collaborating, including with respect to country focused work.

Key messages from the discussions will be used: to inform the next steps in promoting a shared vision for health systems strengthening, taking forward the UHC2030 agenda; to further develop working arrangements for UHC 2030 to function in practice as a health systems coordination platform, articulating how each related initiative engages in UHC 2030.

Participants

Members of health systems related initiatives in the following health areas: financing and protection, governance, workforce, data, integrated people-centred health services, medicines, policy and systems research, joint learning network on UHC. This includes representatives from a range of governments, international development agencies, and civil society organisations. Additional participants have been invited from selected countries and organisations, including civil society, that are potentially interested to engage in UHC2030.
